WRITING A COMMENT / DISCUSSION

COMMENT VS. DISCUSSION

Comment

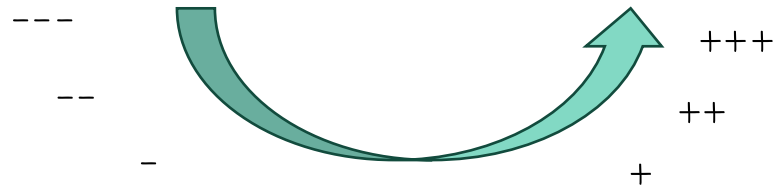

- can be linear, which means that you give arguments for or against a statement
- starts with the weakest and ends with your stongest argument

Discussion

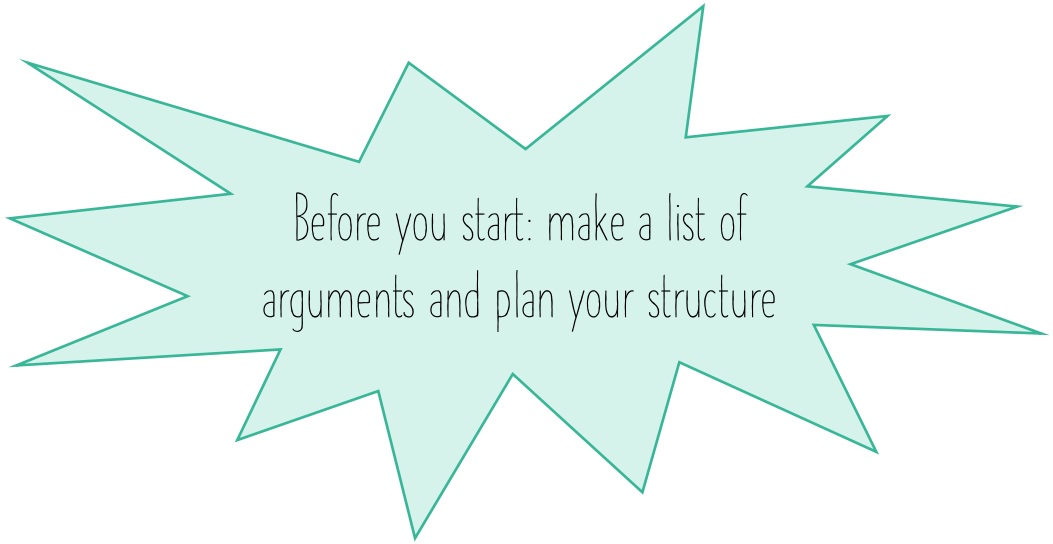

- has to provide pro and counter arguments.

- starts with the strongest counter argument and ends with the strongest pro argument

GENERAL CRITERIA

- easy to follow
- clear structure
- coherent arguements
- written in paragraphs
- use of formal language
- use of varied vocabulary / technical terms
- use of connectives

GENERAL STRUCTURE

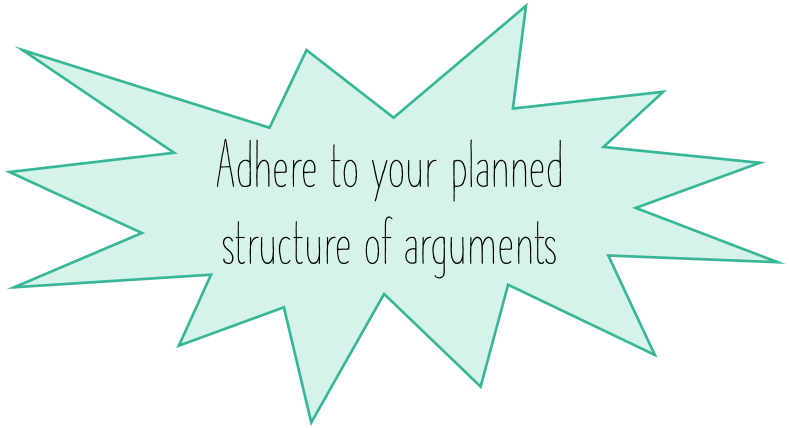

1. introduction
2. main body
3. conclusion

1. INTRODUCTION

- define the problem
- state why it is important, e.g. through
  - common truth
  - facts / statistics
  - personal affection / experience
  - current topic (on the news)
- you may ask a question

2. MAIN BODY

1. state the argument
2. explain it
3. give an example
4. link it to the problem
5. connect it to next argument

3. CONCLUSION

- sum up your arguments
- but: do not repeat arguments
- don't give new arguments
- state your opinion
- if applicable: get back to the introductory question